

We are here to help!

Background

After the unexpected death of a close friend just over 12 months ago, Catherine came up with the idea of developing Critical Info - a cloud-based web application that allows you to document your life, your wishes, and your legacy to share with your loved ones. Critical Info cloud-based web app will be launched later in 2024.

“Losing a friend so unexpectedly brought me face-to-face with the crucial importance of end-of-life planning, and made me determined to establish a secure platform that would empower people with the knowledge and tools they need for informed decisions and comprehensive preparation,” says Catherine.

Don't be Caught Dead podcast

“I have had the opportunity to speak with a range of people and I learnt everyone has their own experience with death. These stories are often unique and untold as people tend not to discuss death. I realised there was an opportunity to share these stories which is why I created the Don't Be Caught Dead podcast, Catherine states. Don't Be Caught Dead is live and can be listened to on any of the major podcast apps.

Critical Info website

On our website we have over 200 organisations specialising in end-of-life planning, deathcare & bereavement including:

- Australian Home Funeral Alliance
- Griefline
- Sustainable Funerals Group
- Australian Funeral Directors Association
- Palliative Care Australia

Guide: My loved one has died, what do I do now?

The goal of this guide is simple: to help ease the stress and uncertainty of dealing with estates and end-of-life arrangements.

It will save you time, money and confusion.

The guide covers the first hours, days, weeks and months after a loved one dies, stepping you through a prioritised list of tasks you will need to complete, from the funeral arrangements to finalising the estate.

The guide details each state of Australia and has been written in consultation with Greg Russo of Greg Russo Law Pty Ltd, a specialist in Wills and Estates Law in Victoria. The guide My loved one has died, what do I do now? is now available for download.
